Brillianteering is a real-life story of a teenager and her parents, coping with the do-or-die years of schooling (Grade 11 and 12). This is a story that many families may be familiar with – struggling with choices of courses, college and coaching classes, coordinating with tutors and mentors and dealing with anxiety and fear of failure, before finally succeeding and entering a great career. A moving narration about her This book is about a teenage girl who went through a tough phase, as she tried to break stereotypes and finally succeed with , accept her weaknesses and work towards improvement. It is also about the young girl's unwavering commitment, hard work and resilience despite all odds that life threw at her. Using a few top chartbusters of 'Beatles' which the girl played to convey her mind many a time, the author, captures the emotional moments they went through in the phase and how holding hands sometimes and letting go at other times, and keeping the faith and belief in the innate abilities of the Girl and giving freedom of choice helped the Girl succeed.

The author also speaks as to how the education ecosystem takes one for a ride and how only a few sincere educators, who encouraged the Girl saying "what if you fly", made a positive impact. In short, the book provides guidance to parents and teenagers to succeed a recipe for success in this extensively competitive age.

The label CLIL stands for classrooms where a foreign language (English) is used as a medium of instruction in content subjects. This book provides a first in-depth analysis of the kind of communicative abilities which are embodied in such CLIL classrooms. It examines teacher and student talk at secondary school level from different discourse-analytic angles, taking into account the interpersonal pragmatics of classroom discourse and how school subjects are talked into being during lessons. The analysis shows how CLIL classroom interaction is strongly shaped by its institutional context, which in turn conditions the ways in which students experience, use and learn the target language. The research presented here suggests that CLIL programmes require more explicit language learning goals in order to fully exploit their potential for furthering the learners' appropriation of a foreign language as a medium of learning.

In this book we demonstrate a mode of teacher education that is practical in a non-technical sense and relies on Dewey's notion of curriculum as the reconstruction of experience. We present a curriculum that emerged through collaborative self-reflection and seeks to reconstruct personal histories of schooling. As four former preservice teachers and their instructor, we engaged in jointly constructed autobiographical inquiry in order to generate data on our own past and on our current histories of teaching and learning. We wanted to illuminate parts of our lives in schools that until now belonged to our 'normal' and taken-for-granted past. We did this in order to enjoy certain degrees of awareness and choice as to which of our living stories to reinforce and which to "let run out" in our classrooms today.

A Practical Approach

Pearson South Africa

This volume highlights some of the main issues and questions surrounding the field of second language (L2) writing, and includes 14 chapters authored by contributors from a wide variety of geographical regions including, but not limited to, North America, Europe, Australia, and Asia. The authors are all experienced L2 writing researchers, and their contributions will enhance the reader's understanding of issues related to L2 writing. Considering the breadth and the depth of the issues raised and discussed, the book will appeal to a wide readership, including postgraduate students of Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL) and Applied Linguistics (AL), and both early-career and experienced TESOL/AL researchers.

Business, Economics and Enterprise Career Examination

The book provides new insights into written corrective feedback by describing students' expectations as well as mediating factors that influence their engagement with it. The book draws on an extensive dataset to illustrate secondary school students' behavioural, cognitive and emotional engagement with written corrective feedback and the extent to which mediating factors, such as teachers, peers, feedback options, attitudes and emotions, foster or hinder it. It shows why teachers need to provide students with the purpose of the corrective feedback they provide, explain how such feedback works and introduce strategies that can be employed to engage with it. Based on the finding that a combination of several feedback types is essential to ensure learner engagement, the book also provides an extensive description and multiple authentic examples of the Engagement-Feedback-

Mediator Model that was developed in the context of this study.
