Coffey and Delamont (both sociology, Cardiff U. Wales) undertake a feminist analysis of the work and everyday realities of the school teacher, offering evidence that feminism is still relevant as a way of thinking about the social world and as a lived reality. They look at the different layers of a teacher's work, intellectual and practical contingencies of the classroom context, the teaching career, and other dimensions. Eco-Literate Music Pedagogy examines the capacity of music-making to cultivate ecological literacy, approaching eco-literate music pedagogy through philosophical and autoethnographical lenses. Building on the principle that music contributes uniquely to human ecological thinking, this volume tracks the course of eco-literate music pedagogy while guiding the discussion forward: What does it mean to embrace the impulse to teach music for ecological literacy? What is it like to theorize eco-literate music pedagogy? What is learned through enacting this pedagogy? How do the impulsion, the theorizing, and the enacting relate to one another? Music education for ecological consciousness is experienced in local places, and this study explores the theory underlying eco-literate music pedagogy in juxtaposition with the author's personal experiences. The work arrives at a new philosophy for music education: a spiritual praxis rooted in soil communities, one informed by ecology's intrinsic value for non-human being and musicking. Eco-Literate Music Pedagogy adds to the emerging body of music education literature considering ecological and environmental issues.
