Greyhound handicapping is an art, not a science. Dog racing is a puzzle and the more pieces you have, the easier it is to put it all together and see the big picture. Eb doesn't claim to be an expert, just someone who has put in a lot of time and effort to learn the art of handicapping greyhound races. Eb has been researching United States greyhound tracks for over four decades and shares the knowledge he's gained with race fans who want to win more and lose less at the greyhound track. Book 1 starts with an article about what works and what doesn't at the greyhound track and ends the article section with a look at insider tips and how they can help you win. In between those articles, you'll find Eb's opinions about form, speed, whether you should bet on dogs that are moving up or moving down, whether kennel statistics matter and how age affects the racing greyhound. Following the articles, there are three mini systems that are a fun way to play the dogs when you don't want to, or can't, handicap thoroughly. In Book 2, Eb starts off by writing about something that you might not connect with dog racing - race shapes. Horse players are more likely to know what they are and use them to win more at the track. But greyhound players can use them too, although few do. It's one more little piece of the handicapping puzzle that gives you an edge over the crowd. From which dogs are phonies and why, to how to use the break to pick winners, Eb writes as if he's sitting beside you at the track, sharing what he knows with a friend. Book 3 has articles on winners that lose, spot plays and how to spot them, smarter superfecta betting and trifecta angles. There's even an article that tells you how to use a single penny to improve your handicapping skills. Read another article to find out if you're one of the few people - besides Eb - who spots what it is that changes everything at the track, but almost no one notices it. If you're not, I guarantee that you won't miss it the next time you go to the track, because you'll be looking for it. The nine mini-systems are just for fun, but might be just the thing for a day out at the track when you don't want to - or don't have time to handicap. At the end of the books there's a long list of links to greyhound handicapping resources that can help anyone handicap better and smarter. Filled with tidbits of handicapping wisdom and with tips, angles and advice that will help you handicap smarter, these are 3 books that should be on every handicapper's shelf. Get all three in one volume while the price is right.

The degree to which markets incorporate information is one of the most important questions facing economists today. This book provides a fascinating study of the existence and extent of information efficiency in financial markets, with a special focus on betting markets. Betting markets are selected for study because they incorporate features highly appropriate to a study of information efficiency, in particular the fact that each bet has a well-defined end point at which its value becomes certain. Using international examples, this book reviews and analyses the issue of information efficiency in both financial and betting markets. Part I is an extensive survey of the existing literature, while Part II presents a range of readings by leading academics. Insights gained from the book will interest students of financial economics, financial market analysts, mathematicians and statisticians, and all those with a special interest in finance or gambling.

Sports Data Mining CreateSpace

Data mining is the process of extracting hidden patterns from data, and it's commonly used in business, bioinformatics, counter-terrorism, and, increasingly, in professional sports. First popularized in Michael Lewis' best-selling Moneyball: The Art of Winning An Unfair Game, it is has become an intrinsic part of all professional sports the world over, from baseball to cricket to soccer. While an industry has developed based on statistical analysis services for any given sport, or even for betting behavior analysis on these sports, no research-level book has considered the subject in any detail until now. Sports Data Mining brings together in one place the state of the art as it concerns an international array of sports: baseball, football, basketball, soccer, greyhound racing are all covered, and the authors (including Hsinchun Chen, one of the most esteemed and well-known experts in data mining in the world) present the latest research, developments, software available, and applications for each sport. They even examine the hidden patterns in gaming and wagering, along with the most common systems for wager analysis.

Excerpt: Parimutuel betting (from the French: or mutual betting) is a betting system in which all bets of a particular type are placed together in a pool; taxes and the "house-take" or "vig" are removed, and payoff odds are calculated by sharing the pool among all winning bets. In some countries it is known as the Tote after the totalisator which calculates and displays bets already made. The parimutuel system is used in gambling on horse racing, greyhound racing, jai alai, and all sporting events of relatively short duration in which participants finish in a ranked order. A modified parimutuel system is also used in some lottery games. Betting on the Favorite, an 1870 engraving Parimutuel betting differs from fixed-odds betting in that the final payout is not determined until the pool is closed - in fixed odds betting, the payout is agreed at the time the bet is sold. Parimutuel gambling is frequently state-regulated, and offered in many places where gambling is otherwise illegal. Parimutuel gambling is often also offered at "off track" facilities, where players may bet on the events without actually being present to observe them in person. Consider a...
