Business Strategy for Entrepreneurs Insights Publishing

You think you have a winning strategy. But do you? Executives are bombarded with bestselling ideas and best practices for achieving competitive advantage, but many of these ideas and practices contradict each other. Should you aim to be big or fast? Should you create a blue ocean, be adaptive, play to win—or forget about a sustainable competitive advantage altogether? In a business environment that is changing faster and becoming more uncertain and complex almost by the day, it's never been more important—or more difficult—to choose the right approach to strategy. In this book, The Boston Consulting Group's Martin Reeves, Knut Haanæs, and Janmejaya Sinha offer a proven method to determine the strategy approach that is best for your company. They start by helping you assess your business environment—how unpredictable it is, how much power you have to change it, and how harsh it is—a critical component of getting strategy right. They show how existing strategy approaches sort into five categories—Be Big, Be Fast, Be First, Be the Orchestrator, or simply Be Viable—depending on the extent of predictability, malleability, and harshness. In-depth explanations of each of these approaches will provide critical insight to help you match your approach to strategy to your environment, determine when and how to execute each one, and avoid a potentially fatal mismatch. Addressing your most pressing strategic challenges, you'll be able to answer questions such as: • What replaces planning when the annual cycle is obsolete? • When can we—and when should we—shape the game to our advantage? • How do we simultaneously implement different strategic approaches for different business units? • How do we manage the inherent contradictions in formulating and executing different strategies across multiple businesses and geographies? Until now, no book brings it all together and offers a practical tool for understanding which strategic approach to apply. Get started today.

Marketing is the biggest factor in determining the long-term success of creative service businesses. More organizations fail to achieve success, or go out of business, because of marketing than for any other cause. And the reason is simple: the old standbys of word-of-mouth, referrals, and occasional promotions are no longer enough in today's increasingly commoditized, competitive, and information-flooded environment. Today more than ever, there's a strong correlation between the success of a creative business and the effectiveness of its marketing efforts. Whether focused on design, advertising, interactive, editorial, or PR, all creatives need marketing know-how to run a successful business. This book is for those interested in running a profitable creative organization, whether alone or as a larger firm's principal or manager. A book for anyone who is unsure of the need for marketing, has had difficulty prospecting for clients, needs to know more about hiring and motivating business development (sales) personnel, or has been less than successful in converting presentations into projects, and concepts into client-approved work. It is written from a general management perspective, and it draws on observations at 12 companies whose annual revenues range between $500 million and $20 billion. Over the past 15 years, my company has formulated vendor-neutral business-focused BI strategies and program execution plans in collaboration with manufacturers, distributors, retailers, logistics companies, insurers, investment companies, credit unions, and utilities, among others.
