The Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act (PAEA) of 2006 required the FTC to submit a comprehensive report identifying the fed. and State laws that apply differently to the U.S. Postal Service (USPS) with respect to the competitive category of mail and to private co. providing similar products; and to include recommend. This report identifies, and quantifies to the extent possible, the USPS's economic burdens and advantages that exist by virtue of its status as a fed. gov't. entity and its postal and mailbox monopolies. It also accounts for the net economic effect of the relevant laws by examining the compounded marketplace impacts, or distortions, that they bring about. It also explores potential means for minimizing or eliminating these distortions.

This book explores the manner in which a variety of public benefits such as environmental protection and consumer safety have been accommodated through the authorisation process within competition law and policy in Australia. While the regulator's use of its discretion can be explained as a triumph of practice over theory, this book explores the potential for competition principles to be imbued by the wider discourses of democratic participation and human rights. In doing so it makes a significant contribution to the Australian competition policy as well as reconceptualising the way in which discretion is used by regulators...a very important and creative contribution to the literatures on both business regulation in general and Australian competition and consumer protection law in particular. It pays special attention to an everyday regulatory function that is often ignored in scholarship. And it is very important in challenging--on both empirical and normative policy oriented grounds--a narrowly economic approach to competition law, and proposing an alternative understanding and practice for the public benefit test in ACCC authorisations.
